

HU 104 English Literature

Credit Hours: 3

Course Description

Students will study representative works of English literature from the 14th to the 20th centuries as literature within social, cultural, and historical contexts. Students will study works representing the development of the novel from the eighteenth to the early twentieth century. They will focus on the styles and themes of representative novelists. Students will study the relationship between form and meaning, and between sound and sense in a variety of poems. They will study the traditions, conventions, and elements of different poetic forms drawn from different times and socio-cultural contexts.

Course Objectives

This course aims to achieve the following objectives:

- To have a better orientation of literature and its relevance with their own lives and daily concerns.
- To be able to think and reflect on issues regarding ethics, human emotions, feelings, and aesthetics, largely ignored in present day life style.
- To enable students express themselves in a more refined way and to compose their thoughts and ideas in a creative fashion by following the literary standards as taught by means of various literary works.
